“ Deline,

Brothers and sisters are one's greatest treasure.

You have been a nice sister of mine. You knew how strict I was in checking whether you have done your homework during your grade school days. You did your best and you even reported to me who among your sisters did not do their homework.

You were a nice sister. When we went to Boston to accompany my son Steven to college, you came to Boston and drove us despite the fact that the streets of BOSTON are so different from the streets of rural Fort COLLins Colorado,

You were a nice host with Kokoy and JR. You toured us around when we visited you for a family reunion.

YOU were a nice mother to your family. You worked hard in Colorado to meet the needs of your family.

The hardest part of our relationship is when its time to say goodbye. Even though I wished that you stay, there seems to be no way because of the kind of ailment you had.

Deline, you will always be in our hearts as your brothers and sister.

We are deeply consoled that your agony has ended and that you are now with our Divine Creator.

We will miss you Deline.

“ Madeline,

I know you were loved and you loved. I could feel it in your home the minute I walked in to do craniosacral therapy with you. I enjoyed our quiet time of sacred touch and the Frank Sinatra songs we listened to. I thought it was interesting how a YouTube commercial popped up and said, “If this was the last day of your life are you ready? “ Another voice said, “Now that’s an odd question! “ I think it was a commercial for a PureFlix movie, but I quickly turned it off to go back to music. Later I wondered whether it was just a quick little message for you to get ready because the next day you passed away. All I know is that after I worked with you, I left with such peace in my heart. I think that peace was coming from you. It stayed with me for hours. I hope the pain relief And relaxation I gave you lasted for hours also.

You will be missed. My love and respect I give to Frank and your son and rest of the family. May they find there way in this world without your physical presence, but always carry your love in their hearts. Lori Nunnally

“ I worked with Maddy at First National. She was always a bright light and so willing to help others. No doubt her life here on earth impacted many in a positive way. She will be missed.

“ Madeline; it was about thirty years ago when you and Frank invited me for breakfast at your residence when I was a participant in a seminar on irrigation operations monitoring and evaluation at CSU. Though it was a short enjoyable encounter that hasn't been repeated, the memory will last forever. We miss you and may you rest in peace with the Lord.

“ I fondly called her B because she was the baby of the family. I will surely miss you, my dear baby sister

“ I am the older sister; however, when Mady & I were in the grade school we looked alike. People & classmates mistook us as twins. So we made a pact with each other that if anyone would smile or greet anyone of us (when we're apart from each) we'll smile back & acknowledge the person. That person might be a classmate or a friend of hers & vice versa with me. We didn't want to be called "snubs".

Becky Tabeta-Perry - August 24 at 01:22 AM

“ I love you a thousand times.
