

Donald Joseph Willox

December 27, 1950 - December 16, 2012

Donald Willox, "Dongo" age 61 of Fort Collins, died Dec. 16th at Poudre Valley Hospital. A celebration of Dongo's life will be held Sunday, January 6th at 1:00 at Fort Collins Foreign Car Service, 1219 Blue Spruce Dr., Ft. Collins.

Donald Joseph Willox was born December 27, 1950 in Fort Collins to Charles and Gertrude Willox, both now deceased. He graduated from Poudre High School. He was drafted into the Army during the Viet Nam War and was honorably discharged. After being discharged, he returned to Ft. Collins and worked for his father at Willox Wrecking Company, and later went to work with Blakes Small Car Salvage yard. Dongo was self-employed for years in the Pick A Part division of the family business, Willox Wrecking. He later went to work with Fort Collins Foreign Car Service and worked there until retiring about ten years ago.

Dongo was a fan of Rockies baseball, Bronco's Football and many college football teams. He enjoyed long day-trips to the mountains; picking up special items at garage sales; and looking at and riding motorcycles. He had a great big and generous heart.

Don is survived by his brother, John; numerous other relatives; and a small group of very close friends.

“ Cousin Donnie, I had such a crush on you when we were growing up. We drove up from Denver to visit Aunt Gertrude and Uncle Charlie, and I got to swing in your tire swing. I finally had a tree big enough to hang one and the grandfather of my son, Zach, made one out of a truck tire for him. We drove up to Theresa's (who now lives just off Willox Lane) this past weekend and stopped at the farmer's stand at your old house. They grow beautiful veggies and fruit. Sorry I'm so late in finding you are gone. When we lost Ana, we kind of lost the glue to the Ft. Collins side of the family. Sad.
