“ i am an old friend of Jeff's from when he lived in Henderson, Nevada. I met hm several times while we both were yard sailing. We both bought and sold lots of stuff as well as collecting for ourselves. After a summer of meeting him at different sales, we stated chatting more. He lived a few houses from my parents place. I got to know his lovely wife Karen too. I have missed him over the years that I didn't see him at sales. We would share stories and let the other one know, if we knew a good sale where one of us had not seen. He was a delightful man and he and Karen became my friend. I called them around Christmas each year. We would laugh about old stories or new. I was sorry when there was no answer on the phone anymore. I checked here and found him. I am so sorry to lose such a fun friend. My love to Karen and his family. He was a very, very nice man.....Carole Taylor

“ Jeff was my step dad, but I looked up to him in so many ways that if I didn't have a dad I would proudly call him dad. He was there since I was a young boy. The young boy who he helped turn me into the man I am today.

I remember when I got so mad at him for pulling my pants down in front of I believe it was Jim and Jerri and say look at the moon. I ran to the bathroom and locked the door. I remember how he taught me to do yard work by hiding a old 20mm bullet in the leaves and saying if you help clean the yard you'll never know what you might find. That was the same yard him and I slept in and looked for night crawlers for fishing. That's another thing he loved to do when he lived in Colorado and Wyoming. We used to go fishing almost every weekend when he lived in Colorado for trout and catfish. The catfish scared me because they way he would fight them to get to them landed made me believe I would be pulled in and then there was the lake we trout fished. We went out night fishing and my line was in the water. I put my rod down and was eating a granola bar and something took my line. I was looking for a place to put my granola bar down and my rod started to go into the lake that's when Jeff said get your line so I went into the water. I was so upset, but it taught me a lesson on how to fish don't leave your rod alone.

I skipped school in the second grade and got caught and I didn't know he had bought me a motorcycle my first motorcycle that same day that was delivered that night. I was so upset with myself, but he knew how to forgive quickly and took me for a ride. He was really a great dad.

I had the best of two world two families that loved me very much. He helped me surprise my mom when I came back from South Korea on mother's day in a funny way. I hid in the room and he started banging around the walls saying I think there is something there then I came out. He was funny. I have so many memories to share. I love him for the fact he really did take care of my mom and us kids. I will love and miss him oh and marge at the age of 17 you're never to old to be spanked.
