“ I was just thinking of Patrick today. I met him in 1992 through my dad Kenny. Both my parents worked in the garment center until retirement. I grew up in it with them. I met Patrick when I hunting for a job in the fashion industry. Ny dad introduced us and the next day I started work at Namn and Singer. I learned the button business from Patrick. He was kind , supportive mentor. One day we sat and talked in his office and we realized we shared the same birthday October 7th. Something about that day made our work together more relaxed . We would talk about the days shenanigans and laugh. Larry and Tim were the owners of Namm and Singer and I recall one day I was asked to go to sketchy building to get samples. I had worn my engagement ring that day. Pat went to bat for me and said send someone else that day, I appreciated having a boss who really listened , supported and gave me the space to grown into the salesperson I was supposed to be. The garment center years were the best times in my life. My dad and Patrick knew each other a long time. I believe last time I spoke to Patrick it was before he retired. I tried after but Larry told me he retired. I am not sure he knew my dad passed away 2006.

Today March 22, 2024 i was just thinking about the button industry today along with textiles and wondering if Namm and Singer were still in business. Wondering how Patrick was. I was so sad to learn he passed away. My friend rest in peace.

I will never forget my boss / friend Patrick who made sure i was always safe and shared in my success. When I got married he made sure the Lu's gave me an extra week salary as a wedding present. I always will keep these wonderful memories of Patrick. My deepest condolences to his beloved family . Stacey Rosen

“ I was so saddened to hear of Pat's passing. Just a few weeks ago, I was able to share time with him at Avery's birthday party. We both were digging into her cake and laughing. He seemed just like the Pat that I had shared so many family holidays with a few years ago. Pat always made me feel comfortable with his family. He and Sharron and I always ended up in a corner sharing stories and chatting up a storm. He had a wonderful sense of humor and such a warm heart. I truly treasured the time I spent with him and am so thankful for the most recent encounter with Avery's bday. I'll remember him that way - laughing and joking and always smiling. I'm going to miss him so much. The world is a little dimmer without his loving spirit.
