“ *Susan and I were consuegras, a word she found to explain what mothers-in-laws are to each other in Spanish. We could talk about anything and shared many special occasions together as well as late night phone calls. We shared babysitting duties and loved keeping up with our kids and grandkids. We will miss her terribly because she was the bright light in our entire family for the past 10 years we were blessed to know her. She always gave of herself beyond limitations and was one of the most strongest women I've known. May peace and love abound in her new journey, with her remaining in our hearts forever.
